Commencement Exercises. "Esto Quod Eres Videris," each letter formed from bright sprays of evergreen, was what first met the eye in Myers opera house this afternoon. It was the class motto of '86, and the exercises in progress were those in honor of commencement day at the high school. The opera house interior presented a beautiful appearance. Above the stage drooped the national flag, the stars and stripes mingling most harmoniously with the evergreen that surrounded it. Each procession box was appropriately trimmed, choice cut flowers lent color to the scene, in fact everything united to form an appropriate background for the cluster of young men and ladies who had gathered there to make their departure from the surroundings of school life to those of the every day old world.

The exercises opened with a selection by Anderson's orchestra, followed by a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Hodge.

The salutatory was delivered by Miss Lizzie Morris, who followed with an essay having for its subject "Alas, I am a Woman." Woman's advance from point to point as the years passed by and Christianity gained in strength; the many fields that were now open for her; the world that she has accomplished; and last of all her true sphere. Home, she spoke of in their turn. Home, she considered the place from which all influence springs and exclaimed in the words of a well known statesman, "Give me the home and I will control the world."

Miss Lizzie Harris took for her subject the class motto, "Esto quod esse videris," which being translated is "Be what you appear to be." The different classes of persons who hide under a smooth exterior a very undesirable character; or who, on the other hand, cover their good traits with a rough coat, were very faithfully portrayed.

"Class History," as recorded by Miss Lottie Rathbone, gave many of the details of school life and also touched on many personalities regarding the subjects of the sketch. With least its keen sparkle from time to time to lighten up the reminiscences, and smiles flitted over the faces of those in the audience at each bit of humor.

"The Evolution of a Commencement Essay," by Miss Bertha Bleedorn, also provoked many good natured smiles. The career and vicissitudes of authorship, as set forth by Miss Bleedorn, seemed very true to life and she received much applause.

During the interval between this essay and that of Miss Minnie Nowlan, Misses Mary Wilcox and Sara Hickney favored the audience with a very pleasing piano duet.

Miss Nowlan's subject was "Work and Worry," and the points made were very good. Worry was pictured as the devil which stirs the hair, dimms the eyes, bows the form, and brings old age before its time. It unnerves the system, overthrows the mind and renders man desperate; while work, always praiseworthy, builds up the home, gathers and spins the cotton, builds the ships, puts the iron horse on the track, and more than that brings each of us nearer to perfection.

Another subject that is discussed all over the country was the one taken up by Miss Mary Wilcox. She spoke upon "The Destruction of Birds," and gave some very timely warnings, interesting her hearers greatly.

From the earliest day there has been within the breast of man an inspiring spirit, an active principle, that has brought many strange things to pass. This subject under the title of "The Value of Party Spirit," was handled by Harry J. Carlo. Party spirit when actuated by patriotism and not by partisanship, was declared a prime necessity to this form of government, and the possible results were laid spoken of in the order of their importance.

An abrupt change from the discussion of different phases of politics to the consideration of such a mirth suggestive subject as "Flics" showed that indifference was being paid to the saying "Variety is the spice of life." Miss Clara Fiel, who read the latter essay did well, a very graphic account of the peculiarities and habits of the insects just named being given.

"All the World's a Stage," was Miss Sara Hickney's subject; and Shakespeare's application of the world to a stage, and all the people as actors, was truthfully portrayed by her; for, the application whether considered in the expense of its meaning, or in its limited sphere, is over true. The scene opens; different nations and different people play their part on the broad stage. The footlights shine brightly; music charms the audience, and all watch with eager expectancy, the progress of the play. The poet, sculptor, architect, painter and musician, are represented; and Daniel Webster is pointed out as one of the brightest stars that has played on the American stage. American shines forth in all her glory—free and independent—the grandest nation in existence, leaving the scenes of America, in imagination, the reader carried her listeners to the "Queen of the Western Isles," or the "Emerald Isle," which is striving so hard for independence; and the kindly sympathy and substantial aid given from America, was shown. The immortal Daniel O'Connell was alluded to as having played well his part in Irish affairs. The movement now going on in Ireland under the sainted leader, Charles Stuart Parnell, was thought a worthy successor to the O'Connell movement. She saw, in fancy, Ireland as Columbia salutes her across the ocean wave, and beholds her rising in the energy of a second birth.

"American Fiction" was presented in a very clear light by Miss Ella Croft, she showing many evidences of the scholarship that has won her the highest honors in the class.

CHORAL UNION CONCERT. An Excellent Programme Well Rendered and Highly Appreciated.

The June concert, which has been in preparation by the Choral Union for the past month, and which has been the all-absorbing topic in musical circles, was given last evening at the Congregational church; and while the audience was not as large as usual on such occasions, there was no lack of enthusiasm and appreciation from the first note in the overture to the closing strains of the Hallelujah Chorus, which was one round of delightful enjoyment. The chorus of about one hundred voices occupied a tiered rostrum, seated in a semi-circle, with back to the orchestra in the foreground, producing a pleasing effect. The piano, at which Mrs. J. W. Bintliff presided, was placed at the right of the platform, while Prof. Torrens directed from an elevated position near the center.

The orchestra never appeared before a Janesville audience to better advantage than last evening, every member seemed at his best, and the combination of harmony and time, with the volume of sound, seemed perfect, eliciting many rounds of applause. Following the overture was the trio and chorus, in which Miss Ella Croft, and Messrs. Collins and Neelander appeared in the leading roles; Miss Croft was in excellent voice and delighted the audience, while the gentlemen fully sustained the reputation they enjoy. The third number, "The Last of the Summer," given in response to an encore, was very nicely rendered. The accompaniments by Mrs. J. W. Bintliff were played with remarkable precision and skill, which won the congratulations of the chorus and others who took part in the programme.

Mrs. J. W. St. John and Mrs. A. O. Wilson sang, with pleasing effect, the duet, "I Waited for the Lord." These ladies never disappoint a home audience and the many words of commendation called out by their effort last evening, are evidence that they still enjoy the old-time popularity. The concert throughout was choice, and the same programme given in the concert season would draw a crowded house. The choruses were well sustained throughout and the Choral Union have reason to congratulate themselves in having permitted to enjoy the effective training of Professor Torrens' leadership. The third semi-annual concert was a success, and nothing but close work for money and the importance of the season, prevented an eight-hundred dollar house.

War on the Army. It is said that Major Parker, of Beloit, is receiving only a portion of the public sympathy in his desperate effort to suppress the Salvation Army in that city. Much comment is made over the matter. Several special meetings of the common council have been held to consider the matter and an ordinance has been drafted forbidding any organization to parade on the streets, excepting on legal holidays, unless it has the consent of the mayor. It provides, however, that citizens or minstrel shows shall not be included in the order. Many of the citizens fail to see why a Salvation Army procession is any more detrimental to the peace and good order of the city than that of a circus would be. In one case there is a drum and three or four tambourines; in the other a brass band; in one, a number of men and women on foot; in the other, a train of brightly painted wagons interspersed with steam calliopes and similar features. Just why the first is so much worse than the last, is hard to see. If one is wrong both are wrong, and the fact that a circus has a license to put up its tents on some vacant lot, should not give it any right to do what to others is prohibited. So reason what of the good people in the Line City. What the outcome will be is hard to tell.

Big Barn Burned. The immense barn, one of the best and largest in this locality, on the farm of Mr. A. B. Knapp, perhaps better known as the "Wood farm," about four miles southwest of the city, was struck by lightning and totally burned at about midnight last night. The barn was exceptionally well built and contained a few tons of hay, some agricultural machinery and some cattle, eight head of the latter losing their lives. The total loss will exceed $9,000, which is about two-thirds insured.—Beloit Free Press.

June 24th. This explains the cause of the fire alarm at 11:18 o'clock on Wednesday night, in this city. Mr. Knapp's family, living only a few rods from the barn, knew nothing of the fire until next morning.

The Weather. At seven o'clock this morning the thermometer indicated 62 degrees above zero. Partly cloudy with northwest wind. At 1 o'clock p. m. the register was 77 degrees above zero. Partly cloudy with west wind. For the corresponding hours one year ago the register was 68 and 87 degrees above zero.

For Michigan and Wisconsin—Generally fair weather, stationary temperature, variable winds.

Our stock must be reduced $5,000 by July 4th. The only way to effect this result is to slash into prices regardless of cost or value. We are not doing this to make money, but to reduce stock previous to inventory, and we guarantee that every dollar expended in our store during this sale will ever before be again.
